FRENCH TAKE OVER 3 MORE GERMAN CITIES

FRENCH NEARER TO FRANKFURT, FEARED MAY BE TAKEN SOON

ABOUT 300 TROOPS USED IN OCCUPATION OF MANNHEIM, MANY BRING BAGGAGE

LUXEMBERG RAILROAD STATION AND MANNHEIM CUSTOM OFFICE OCCUPIED

(By United Press)
Berlin, March 3.—French today occupied two of the most important industrial centers of the Rhine valley—Mannheim and Darmstadt.

Somewhat later Karlsruhe, further to the south was also taken by the French.

The advance of several companies which seized the cities, put the French much nearer to Frankfurt and the Germans feared this city may be taken next.

About 300 troops were used in the occupation of Mannheim, 120 of these bringing their baggage and camping out in the Hilda school-house while others scattered throughout the center of the city.

The Luxembourg railroad station and the Mannheim customs office were occupied.

At Darmstadt a company of white French troops have, according to reports from Germany, one of colored, marched into the city and confiscated railroad workshops.

By seizing the higher section of Mannheim, the French control the Rhine and the customs.

Posts to put this control immediately into effect were established.

The Germans have frequently incorrectly reported advances upon these two cities. Today's occupation was effected swiftly. It was a shock to the inhabitants who immediately arranged measures of resistance.

Railway workers of both Darmstadt and Mannheim quit work when they found the French in their midst.

The invaders who were active in the Ruhr as well, rounding up officials who are to be deported, arresting and disarming police while cavalry and tanks occupied and controlled the center of Gelsenkirchen.

Near Rotterdam last night 6,000 French troops with tanks and machine guns surprised and surrounded a company of "green police" marching 250 of the Germans away to an unknown destination.

The 67th Congress, Its Successes and Failures

BRAINERD POULTRY SCHOOL HEARS N. E. CHAPMAN SPEAK ON BREEDING, FEEDING, HOUSING, ETC., OF POULTRY

A very enthusiastic "class" was in attendance at the Brainerd poultry school, held at the Civic and Commerce association rooms Friday. Men and women from the city vied with their country neighbors in showing their interest in this subject. It is estimated that about 50 were enrolled at the morning session and at least 65 in the afternoon.

N. E. Chapman, assistant professor of poultry husbandry at the state university and poultry expert, sent out by the agricultural extension service, had charge of the school, and made his talks so interesting and instructive that all in attendance regretted that the time was so limited, all feeling that they should like to spend another day on the subject.

At the morning session Mr. Chapman outlined the work he had in mind, classifying it into five divisions, breeding, feeding, housing, management and care of poultry. With the exception of feeding, all of these subjects received attention in the morning.

The matter of feeding 100 hens so that they will produce 50 eggs per day was the theme at the afternoon session. This is considered an average production, although hens with a 250 egg record per year are quite common. (Continued on Page 3)

5 MISSING MINERS BELIEVED BURIED UNDER FALLEN ROCK

SURVIVORS OF ARISTA MINE DISASTER SAY 3 EXPLOSIONS OCCURRED

THEY BELIEVED COAL DUST WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE TERRIFIC BLASTS

(By United Press)
Arista, West Virginia, March 3.—Hope was abandoned today for the five men still missing in the Pocahontas coal mine from which six bodies were recovered following three tremendous explosions late yesterday.

Rescue workers returned at 8 a. m. to be replaced by a second shift, and declared the five missing miners are buried beneath walls of rock and slate which tumbled from the roof of the mine when the blast occurred.

Survivors of the disaster, 45 of whom are in a hospital here today, said the three distinct explosions at a depth of 3,200 feet crumbled the shaft walls.

Coal dust, they believe, was responsible for the blast. W. A. Carven, superintendent, said no dynamiting had been authorized.

Rescuers toiled throughout the night by the light of gasoline torches. Wives of the missing men waiting at the mines caught the hopeless expression of the rescuers as they came to the surface.

Stoically, they lead their sobbing children back to the row of little black huts a few hundred feet from the mine entrance.

Leaders of the fresh rescue squad started digging into the great piles of debris in search of the missing men.

Ten Bodies Now Recovered

Arista, W. V., March 3.—Ten bodies had been recovered in the Pocahontas coal mine at 11 a. m. today. Rescue workers brought up the bodies of four additional workers who perished with six others when a triple coal dust explosion wrecked the workings of the mine yesterday.

LAST MINUTE JAM TO GET THROUGH PET MEASURES

HOUSE HELD FOUR SESSIONS, THE SENATE FIVE—DATES GIVEN

OUTSTANDING DOMESTIC LEGISLATION WAS FORNEY-MCCUMBER TARIFF ACT

HELD MANY SESSIONS

Washington, March 3.—In the 67th congress, the house held four sessions, the senate five. These ran as follows:

Senate met March 4, 1921 to March 15, to confirm President Harding's cabinet. Congress met in first session April 11, adjourned November 23.

Second session began December 5, ended September 22, 1922. Third session November 20 to December 4, 1922.

Fourth and final session December 4, 1922 to March 4, 1923.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, March 3.—The Sixty-Seventh Congress today wrote the final chapter of its legislative record.

As the time for its final adjournment drew near members of both houses were making frantic efforts to squeeze some pet bill through the last minute jam. Most of them were doomed.

"The accomplishments of congress naturally fell under two headings—domestic and international. Under both headings a record of lasting importance was made.

"Domestic program: 'The outstanding domestic legislation of the 67th congress was the Fordney-McCumber tariff act. The house ways and means committee got to work on it before the congress assembled and it passed the house on July 21, 1921. It was more than a year later or on August 19 that it passed the senate. It took the place of the democratic Underwood-Simmons law."

As the administration came into power on an economy platform, the enactment of the budget system of making government appropriations was generally regarded by Republicans as their next greatest achievement.

The soldier bonus bill also passed both houses, but President Harding vetoed it, on the ground that it made no provision for raising money to pay the bonus, and that the treasury was not able itself to find the money. Though the pro-bonus group was strong in congress, due partly to the imminence of the 1922 election, insufficient votes to override the veto were available and the bonus failed.

The coal strike of 1922 caused enactment of two measures, one aimed at prevention of future strikes, the other to insure equitable distribution of fuel resources. The first was creation by the Borah bill of a fact-finding fuel commission, to delve into the coal industry and bring up for congress facts upon which an industrial code for the coal industry might be based. The work of this commission is in process of performance, and a partial report has been made to President Harding. The other measure revived to a degree federal fuel control, by appointment of a federal fuel distributor, in charge of coal distribution.

Billions spent
Three sets of appropriation bills were passed, involving billions of dollars for the upkeep of the government. These bills, the last of which were finally enacted in the closing days of the present session, will carry the government until June 30, 1924.

In the closing days of the congress there was also enacted a bill both domestic and international in its implications. This was the measure

LAST MINUTE JAM TO GET THROUGH PET MEASURES

(By United Press)

HOUSE HELD FOUR SESSIONS, THE SENATE FIVE—DATES GIVEN

OUTSTANDING DOMESTIC LEGISLATION WAS FORDNEY-MCCUMBER TARIFF ACT

(By United Press)

Washington, March 3.—In the 67th congress, the house held four sessions, the senate five. These ran as follows:

Senate met March 4, 1921 to March 15, to confirm President Harding's cabinet.

Congress met in first session April 11, adjourned November 23.

Second session began December 5, ended September 22, 1922.

Third session November 20 to December 4, 1922.

Fourth and final session December 4, 1922 to March 4, 1923.

By LAWRENCE MARTIN (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, March 3.—The Sixty-Seventh Congress today wrote the final chapter of its legislative record.

As the time for its final adjournment drew near members of both houses were making frantic efforts to squeeze some pet bill through the last minute jam. Most of them were doomed.

"The accomplishments of congress naturally fell under two headings—domestic and international. Under both headings a record of lasting importance was made.

"Domestic program: The outstanding domestic legislation of the 67th congress was the Fordney-McCumber tariff act. The house ways and means committee got to work on it before the congress assembled and it passed the house on July 21, 1921. It was more than a year later or on August 19 that it passed the senate. It took the place of the democratic Underwood-Simmons law."

As the administration came into power on an economy platform, the enactment of the budget system of making government appropriations was generally regarded by Republicans as their next greatest achievement.

The soldier bonus bill also passed both houses, but President Harding vetoed it, on the ground that it made no provision for raising money to pay the bonus, and that the treasury was not able itself to find the money.

Though the pro-bonus group was strong in congress, due partly to the imminence of the 1922 election, insufficient votes to override the veto were available and the bonus failed.

The coal strike of 1922 caused enactment of two measures, one aimed at prevention of future strikes, the other to insure equitable distribution of fuel resources. The first was creation by the Borah bill of a fact-finding fuel commission, to delve into the coal industry and bring up for congress facts upon which an industrial code for the coal industry might be based. The work of this commission is in process of performance, and a partial report has been made to President Harding. The other measure revived to a degree federal fuel control, by appointment of a federal fuel distributor, in charge of coal distribution.

Billions Spent
Three sets of appropriation bills were passed, involving billions of dollars for the upkeep of the government. These bills, the last of which were finally enacted in the closing days of the present session, will carry the government until June 30, 1924.

In the closing days of the congress there was also enacted a bill both domestic and international in its implications. This was the measure and a maximum of 320 eggs per year has been reached in a few cases.

HEARS N. E. CHAPMAN SPEAK

Mr. Chapman emphasized the importance of the poultry industry, by a series of comparisons, using New York City as an example, since a large share of many of Minnesota's products go to this great market. It was stated that in this city of 10,000,000 people, 63 pounds of poultry products are consumed per capita each year, being 30 pounds of eggs and 33 pounds of poultry. Next to this comes dairy products, including beef, 56 pounds are consumed by each individual per annum. Thirty-one pounds of fish, 30 pounds of pork and 17 pounds of mutton completes the list.

County Agent E. G. Roth brought out some interesting facts in connection with poultry raising in this county as compared with other lines of agriculture. He quoted statistics from the federal census of 1920 in which the value of dairying heads the list at $364,000. This total has been brought up to the four hundred thousand mark in 1922.

Following that is the value of livestock in the county, $152,341, and poultry ranks third with a valuation of $70,000, which has been increased to $100,000 in the two years since the census was taken. Wool comes fourth with a $17,000 valuation.

Mr. Roth pointed out the different methods that have been used in Crow Wing county the past few years to create a greater interest in poultry raising and the marketing of poultry products, and stated the belief that great strides will be made in this industry in the next several years.

Mr. Chapman pointed out the need of utilizing the co-operative creameries as a medium of marketing poultry products. He stated that in Mille Lacs county the Farmers Co-operative creamery increased the price of eggs 25 per cent over local market prices by shipping them to the east. This necessitated grading the eggs, but it was well worth the effort.

Eleven Meeker county creameries

are sending out an average of one carload of eggs per week, said Mr. Chapman, thereby getting 20 cents per dozen more than was paid locally.

More attention must be paid to the marketing of eggs, Mr. Chapman urged. It is now the practice of the farmer to consume the best appearing eggs himself and sell the balance, which usually includes a great many dirty ones. In turn the retailer picks them over to give his best trade the finest looking eggs, and the rest, not much better than culls, are shipped east, where they bring the poorest price on the market and in addition, give the poultry raisers of this state a poor reputation. This order, or process, should be reversed, the smallest and poorest looking eggs kept at home, and the best only sent to the eastern trade.

Hugo Pflock, one of Brainerd's poultry fanciers, had a Rhode Island Red hen on exhibition at the school. Mr. Pflock stated that in the month of October, 1922, usually considered a poor month for egg production, this hen presented him with 28 eggs.

As if to remove any doubt that might be lurking in the minds of those attending the poultry school, as to the truth of Mr. Pflock's statement, this hen proceeded to demonstrate her ability as a producer and laid an egg on the spot. Her owner gave the egg to Prof. Chapman with the suggestion that it was strictly fresh and would add materially to his supper menu.

Following the afternoon session the instructor held an open forum, and took up troubles presented by individual raisers, and offered many excellent suggestions for improving the poultry business in this county.

From Brainerd Mr. Chapman went to Rothsay, Minn., in Wilkins county, where he is conducting a school today similar to the one held here. He stated that the first school of this nature over which he presided in Brainerd was 14 years ago, and complimented the farmers here on the strides they had made since that time.

It was stated that in this city of 10,000,000 people, 63 pounds of poultry products are consumed per capita each year, being 30 pounds of eggs and 33 pounds of poultry. Next to this comes dairy products, including beef, 56 pounds are consumed by each individual per annum. Thirty-one pounds of fish, 30 pounds of pork and 17 pounds of mutton completes the list.

County Agent E. G. Roth brought out some interesting facts in connection with poultry raising in this county as compared with other lines of agriculture. He quoted statistics from the federal census of 1920 in which the value of dairying heads the list at $364,000. This total has been brought up to the four hundred thousand mark in 1922.

Following that is the value of livestock in the county, $152,341, and poultry ranks third with a valuation of $70,000, which has been increased to $100,000 in the two years since the census was taken. Wool comes fourth with a $17,000 valuation.

Mr. Roth pointed out the different methods that have been used in Crow Wing county the past few years to create a greater interest in poultry raising and the marketing of poultry products, and stated the belief that great strides will be made in this industry in the next several years.

Mr. Chapman pointed out the need of utilizing the co-operative creameries as a medium of marketing poultry products. He stated that in Mille Lacs county the Farmers Co-operative creamery increased the price of eggs 25 per cent over local market prices by shipping them to the east. This necessitated grading the eggs, but it was well worth the effort.

Eleven Meeker county creameries

are sending out an average of one carload of eggs per week, said Mr. Chapman, thereby getting 20 cents per dozen more than was paid locally.

More attention must be paid to the marketing of eggs, Mr. Chapman urged. It is now the practice of the farmer to consume the best appearing eggs himself and sell the balance, which usually includes a great many dirty ones. In turn the retailer picks them over to give his best trade the finest looking eggs, and the rest, not much better than culls, are shipped east, where they bring the poorest price on the market and in addition, give the poultry raisers of this state a poor reputation. This order, or process, should be reversed, the smallest and poorest looking eggs kept at home, and the best only sent to the eastern trade.

Hugo Pflock, one of Brainerd's poultry fanciers, had a Rhode Island Red hen on exhibition at the school. Mr. Pflock stated that in the month of October, 1922, usually considered a poor month for egg production, this hen presented him with 28 eggs.

As if to remove any doubt that might be lurking in the minds of those attending the poultry school, as to the truth of Mr. Pflock's statement, this hen proceeded to demonstrate her ability as a producer and laid an egg on the spot. Her owner gave the egg to Prof. Chapman with the suggestion that it was strictly fresh and would add materially to his supper menu.

Following the afternoon session the instructor held an open forum, and took up troubles presented by individual raisers, and offered many excellent suggestions for improving the poultry business in this county.

From Brainerd Mr. Chapman went to Rothsay, Minn., in Wilkins county, where he is conducting a school today similar to the one held here. He stated that the first school of this nature over which he presided in Brainerd was 14 years ago, and complimented the farmers here on the strides they had made since that time.

THE LATE BISHOP CHARLES D. WILLIAMS

AMERICA has sustained a great loss by the death of the Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, bishop of the Episcopal church in Michigan. As a fearless preacher; as interpreter of Americanism, but more especially of the spirit of his Master; as a leader in demanding the social application of the teachings of Christianity, and a firm believer that civilization is to be measured as a whole and not by the advantages that come to a certain small minority of the people in it, Bishop Williams stood out as a bishop whose high office did not silence his criticisms and whose humanity led to a splendid use of the position to which he was called.

Probably but few clergymen of the Episcopal church have such a facility for presenting practical Christianity to congregations in rural places or large city churches as that possessed by the late bishop of Michigan. He could preach to a rural audience and, in language that all understood, sketch rural problems and show how they might be faced. He knew people and their differences, and with full knowledge of individual and social distinctions, he was able to appeal to strangely different personalities. But, perhaps, the most striking thing in the bishop's life was the way he faced the problems of our modern civilization when he preached in city churches. If denunciation was necessary; he denounced; but this was not his usual method. He made the glaring inconsistencies of modern civilization so apparent that, even those who disapproved of his criticism of the social order, were convinced by his logic.

Bishop Williams was one of the religious leaders of the generation who, seeing Christianity in terms not of creed but of life, emphasized the need of an application of the Gospel of the Nazarene to the social, industrial and economic order. Fearlessly he applied the teaching of his Master to the wrongs of society. Believing in the brotherhood of man, he was offended by anything that injured his brothers. Men were to him more precious than systems and creeds and traditions and methods. All these, he believed, should be subservient to men because "the sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath."

Because he dared to apply Christianity to life, fearlessly, Bishop Williams was criticized. In 1921 he submitted his resignation, which might have been accepted at any time that the Episcopal church in Michigan saw fit to make it effective. But he continued to serve until death called him.

Whether or not his attitude towards investigations, such as that conducted by the Inter-church World Movement at the time of the last strike of steel workers, served the best interests of the church at large, Bishop Williams has stirred the enthusiasm of many younger men, who in the churches of the United States, are demanding that our nominally Christian civilization be made Christian not only in name but in fact. He was a challenge, an inspiration and a conscience to the church in America, who, in passing, cast his mantle on the shoulders of younger men who will carry forward his work.

IGNORING CAUSES DOES NOT PREVENT EFFECTS

THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL calls attention to the five great modern fears that were mentioned recently by Glenn Frank, editor of the Century magazine. The five fears mentioned are represented as follows:

There is the biological fear that the blood of the race is deteriorating through too much crossing of stocks. There is the psychological fear that the mob will crowd to the wall the creative expression of individual thought. There is the economic fear that modern industrialism has over-reached itself and is top heavy. There is the administrative fear that managerial ability cannot keep pace with the growing complexity of industrial problems. There is the moral fear that the younger generation is turning away from the ideals that gave the forefathers strength and society its ballast.

These things are feared by men who are thoughtful. The unthinking demagogue is delighted that some of the things that cause the intelligent to fear are just as they are. He looks to the triumph of his programs through the break-down of things that are. The more grave the symptoms of illness in the present system, the more he hopes that the system will die and his dreams be realized. But such is not the position assumed by intelligent men in general. They know that civilization is built up by a consistent struggle, in which, though changes are necessary, evolution is better far than revolution.

The intelligent citizens of this republic must face the causes of fear. These fears are not all born of darkness; they are not dreams of the night. Ignoring the fears will not remove them. To say that there are no causes for fear will never remove them, and to tell ourselves that the civilization of the age is getting better and the problems are getting fewer, when civilization is in the balance and the problems are multiplying, will not lead to the removal of the causes of fear.

One of the best methods for removing some fears is an increase of light. Fears arise from lack of understanding. Intelligence is needed to chase fears. Quite often, after a thing is seen, it is not feared. We need to see our problems, to face them boldly, to attack them cooperatively and to conquer them intelligently. There is too much of poker game anxiety in modern life. We fear because we don't know what is in the other fellow's hand; he may be bluffing, but we don't know. The condition of the game of life demands a show-down. When the hand that is feared has placed the cards on the table, the anxiety is past, even if somebody must pay up.

THE farmer ought to have more to say about what he shall receive for his produce. The professional man sets his prices, the merchant sets his, and the farmer takes what he can get and then pays the prices asked by the others. If any occupation ought to retain the best brains it is farming! The farmer is up against the brains of all the others.

THE 67TH CONGRESS, ITS SUCCESSES AND ITS FAILURES

approving the refunding of the British war debt of $4,600,000,000.

Because of a filibuster in the senate which will go down as one of the most remarkable in senatorial annals, the "pet measure" of the administration, the merchant marine or ship subsidy bill, failed of passage. The House passed it, but though administration leaders tried in every way to get it through the senate, a group of democrats and farm bloc republicans obstructed it to death.

Most filibusters in congress tie up the whole legislative program and prevent any business being done for the time being. The ship subsidy filibuster, however, did not delay any appropriation bills or seriously interfere with other legislation. It was conducted less by means of protracted speeches than by forcing other measures into places of precedence over the subsidy. President Harding pleaded hard for the subsidy, but his efforts were unavailing.

A senate filibuster also killed the Dyer anti-lynching bill. This filibuster was short but most cleverly handled. It evidenced considerable poker ability on the part of those responsible. They bluffed the senate into the belief that insistence on the Dyer bill would spell disaster, and the sponsors of the bill laid down their hands.

International Affairs

Having come into power in part, as they felt, on the issue of keeping the country out of the league of nations, the republicans negotiated a separate peace treaty with Germany. This the senate ratified early in the present congress. It also ended the long dispute with Colombia growing out of the acquisition of land for the Panama canal, by ratifying a treaty providing for payment of $25,000,000 to Colombia.

In passing the naval appropriation bill in the first session, the senate added an amendment by Senator Borah, requesting President Harding to call an international conference, on the limitation of armaments. This conference, now historic, resulted in several treaties, which were submitted to the senate on February 10, 1922, by President Harding. They were ratified without much difficulty, the four power Pacific treaty causing the greatest discussion. The last of the treaties was disposed of on March 30, 1922.

The Newberry Case

This congress also saw the official vindication and the passing of Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan. For three years following his election in 1918, Newberry had been the central figure, in courts and in the senate, of a unique election contest, growing out of the expenditure of money in his campaign for nomination and election. The U. S. supreme court had set aside his conviction, on the ground that the law under which he was convicted was unconstitutional. A senate committee investigated, and finally the majority reported that Newberry was blameless and clearly entitled to his seat. A democratic minority held a contrary view, and the senate, after a protracted fight, seated Newberry in January, 1922.

The case was made an issue in the 1922 election and many senators felt its effects. Soon after the results of that election became apparent, Newberry, on November 19, 1922, resigned and went to Europe.

Death laid its hand heavily upon the 67th congress. Four senators and more than a score of House members died. The senators were Knox, Penrose and Crow of Pennsylvania and Watson of Georgia. The House members included James R. Mann of Illinois, for many years a conspicuous figure in the House.

In the next congress, fifteen senators who sat today in the upper house and a large number of House members will no longer be upon the rolls, having been defeated in the 1922 elections, or having voluntarily retired.

Noisily Working to Finish

Washington, March 3.—With the clatter and bang that has become habitual with expiring congresses, the 67th congress today was noisily working its way to the finish.

There was no reason except the constitutional limitation why congress could not have met at 11 today and adjourned at noon. Its work was virtually done.

Nevertheless, a tremendous amount of energy was being spent in both houses. For the first time in years the ending of congress found the decks clear of major legislation.

Only two bills of importance were left today to be acted on—the conference reports on a farm credit and the third deficiency bill. The log jam was cleared away when the senate's filibuster against the ship subsidy ended and since then many bills

Zakariassen at Center Played a Clever Game of Defense and Offense as Well

The St. Cloud Journal-Press gives this account of the great game played between Brainerd high school basketball quint and the St. Cloud team at St. Cloud on Thursday evening:

Outclassing any previous game of the season, the St. Cloud Technical high school team last evening eliminated the Brainerd high school quintet in the district title play and is the favorite in tonight's final game to decide the basketball championship of the Third district of the State High School Athletic association.

The Little Falls high, playing a remarkable game in the second half of the fray with the Aitkin high, won 30 to 12 and will be St. Cloud's opponent tonight and promises to make a strong bid for honors and the right to represent the district in the state tournament to be held in Minneapolis this month.

A record crowd attended the games, and the brand of basketball shown by the four teams was the best seen on the armory floor this season. They fought thru every minute and few uninteresting moments were found in either game.

First Game Fast

The first fray, St. Cloud and Brainerd competing, was the accomplishment of speed in basketball. The St. Cloud lads set a pace early in the game and continued to increase their speed as the time passed by until the attack grew into a torrent of basketballs passing thru the hoop in the final period. In that set to the Saints brought their score from 23 to 45. Gasser was responsible for five of the field baskets, scoring four of them in a minute of play.

Brainerd played good basketball but did not show the perfection of play shown by Coach Schropp's men.

Coates Scores First

Jack Coates, captain of the St. Cloud team, scored first and started his team with a lead that was never relinquished and tied only once. The tie came after Coates had scored when W. Engbretson, Brainerd right forward, caged a pretty throw at a good distance. Gasser counted on a free throw and Neuens followed with a field basket. From that time the Brainerd lads were unable to halt even for a moment the steadily increasing speed of the Techs.

The score at the end of the first period was 9 and 3. At the half it was 14 and 6, and at the third quarter 23 to 11.

Gasser Is Star

There was little difficulty in selecting the stars. Gasser was head and shoulders above any man on the floor and the St. Cloud guards played in magnificent style. Anderson played wonderfully well at forward, though he showed a lesser ability than that possessed by his fellow forward at tossing the ball thru the net.

W. Engbretson was easily the star for Brainerd and Zakariassen at center played a clever game of defense and offense as well. The Brainerd guards played in fine style but the fast attack of the Saints and their speed in directing the ball to the hoop was a bit too much.

Gasser scored nine field baskets. Coates was next with five. W. Engbretson scored 11 of Brainerd's 13 points with three field baskets and five free throws out of five chances.

LITTLE FALLS AND AITKIN TIE AT HALF

The first half of the Little Falls-Aitkin game was as a real battle and fans expected to see a close finish. But the Aitkin lads could not stand up under the pace they were forced to go in the first half when the strong attack of Little Falls got on its way.

Aitkin Takes Lead

Hanson scored first with a spectacular throw from the middle of the floor. The little forward drew a lot of cheers as the first counter was marked up on the Aitkin side of the board. The lead was for only a short time and Abrahamson, star Little Falls forward, scored a pair in short order to give his team a lead. Lasky followed and the Little Falls lead was 6 to 2. Before the period ended Hanson had caged another of his spectacular throws for a count of 6 to 4.

At the start of the second quarter, Kast, Aitkin captain and center, showed that Hanson was not alone and he made a throw that rivalled any other during the evening. It tied the count. Little Falls forged into a lead of one point on a free throw and then Hanson gave his team another ray of hope when he caged his third basket. Abrahamson again tied the count with a free throw and Small, Aitkin left forward, made the count 10 to 8 for his team. But Corse, Little Falls captain, tied the count just before time was called.

Little Falls Was Outplayed

Aitkin had scored its 10 points on five field baskets. Kast had but one free throw chance and he missed that. Little Falls had scored four field goals. Corse missed three free throw chances and Abrahamson counted on two out of three.

Aitkin's attack was not going thru the Little Falls defense. There was little attempt to do so. The lads were taking the long chances, and in that manner had outplayed the better team in the first half. The Little Falls attack was going thru in good shape but the men were losing on their easy chances at the basket.

Form Reversed

In the second half the teams showed a complete reversal of form. Aitkin did not continue its attack as in the start and Little Falls began to count on the chances at the goal. The Aitkin basket defense was failing.

During the third quarter Aitkin did not score while Little Falls brought its count to 20. In the fourth Aitkin scored one field goal. Abrahamson, Hanson and Kast were stars of the game.

MORE VALUABLE THAN DAIRYING

New York City and Suburbs Forms Greatest Market for Minnesota Products

Poultry products outclass the dairy receipts in the states of the west, north central section by seven million dollars, N. E. Chapman, assistant professor of poultry husbandry at the University of Minnesota, told local Rotarians at their Friday noon luncheon.

The states that comprise this section are Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas. They are often referred to as the "Butter Belt" and "Bread Basket" of the nation.

In comparing the value of the poultry industry to others in this section, Mr. Chapman stated that dairying in 1922 brought in $263,000,000 while the poultry industry led with an enormous total of $270,000,000.

The leading dairy state in the west, north central section, according to Mr. Chapman, is Minnesota, the greatest poultry raising state, Iowa, which is also classed as the "second in the United States in regard to this great industry, a goodly share of both products from this section is consumed by New York City and its suburbs, which is our biggest market, said the speaker.

Much interesting data was given by Prof. Chapman concerning the place that the poultry industry has taken in the business of this country, opening the eyes of many of his hearers who had looked upon poultry raising as of minor importance compared with other lines in this section. County Agent E. G. Roth was also a guest of the club, and in a short talk contended that business men of this county should boost agriculture and its several divisions, as much or more as they have the iron mining and manufacturing possibilities. Agriculture, and especially dairying and poultry raising, are a much more stable industry than any other we have, yet little has been said of them compared to the publicity given other lines.

Mr. Roth urged the Rotarians to put agriculture at the head of the list when extolling the virtues of Crow Wing county at the district convention in the near future.

Rev. Samuelson, pastor of the church and president of the Aid, gave a very glowing tribute to Mrs. Lindberg, and spoke of the work she had done in the congregation during the past forty years. She with her husband, now deceased, were among the first members of Clara Lutheran church, through whose efforts the congregation grew and the Ladies Aid and other societies were started. Rev. Samuelson closed his remarks by reading a poem he had written for the occasion and gave it to Mrs. Lindberg as a remembrance of the day.

The ladies presented the honor guest with a mantle clock and a bouquet of carnations as a farewell gift. Mrs. Lindberg will be greatly missed in the church circle and in her home, but the results of her work will always be felt and serve to keep her in loving memory of her friends. ## PUBLIC SHOULD GIVE WILLARD SQUARE DEAL

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, March 2.—Jess Willard fooled everyone with the terrible showing he made at Toledo in 1919 and he may cross all the wise men when he essays his comeback here next May.

The former champion may be a slow thinker, but he isn't such a dumb-bell that he will not profit by the mistakes he made when he was getting ready to meet Jack Dempsey.

The errors the big Kansas cowboy made were many and serious. He had a badly swollen head and he thought he was so good no one could get him. He thought he knew so much he did not need training advice or competent seconds in his corner. He didn't train and he didn't hold his hands up.

It was a costly lesson he learned that July afternoon and unless he applies it his second downfall will be even more ignominious than the first.

Granting that Floyd Johnson is a promising heavyweight, that he is a big and strong and that he can hit, he is no Dempsey and it was a great Dempsey, great as Dempsey ever will be, who forced Willard to stop in Toledo.

If Willard has sense enough to get out against Johnson, keep his hands up, move around a little and make some use of his commanding reach, it is hard to figure how Johnson can hope to knock him out. Perhaps Johnson could outpoint him if the bout does go the limit, but merely winning a decision from Willard will not make the populace rise up and yell—"We want Dempsey and Johnson."

Dempsey is the one that the Johnson crowd is after and Mr. Kearns' most recent logic is—"We will fight anyone the public demands."

Regardless of what faults he has been guilty of in the past, and vanity and selfishness seemed the worst offenses, Willard ought to get a square deal. He was not treated right on his recent trip to New York. He was sneered at and jered and if he hadn't been game, he would have flown from New York to the marching tune of the raspberry. Many stories were passed around about him, one of the latest being that he was knocked out in the Madison Square Garden gym one afternoon during his workout by George Godfrey, the colored protege of Jack Johnson. His refusal to box several times for the Red Cross during the war and several other skeletons from the closet were rattled, but Willard stuck it out and he finally got himself a match.

AMUSEMENTS

"Boomerang Bill" Delightful at Lyceum

Acting of the highest order, a story that plumbs the depths of human feelings, and photography that delights the eye—these signalize "Boomerang Bill" with Lionel Barrymore which will complete its run at the Lyceum theatre tonight.

Marguerite Marsh is seen in support of Mr. Barrymore.

Will Rogers and Lila Lee at Lyceum Sunday

Admirers of Will Rogers, the comedian, will be delighted to know that he will be seen in "One Glorious Day," a Paramount comedy at the Lyceum theatre Sunday.

Mr. Rogers was specially engaged for the role of Ezra Botts, a professor. Mr. Rogers declares that he made the Zeigfeld Follies girls famous because of his contrast. And he declares that in "One Glorious Day" he is the best foil for Lila Lee's beauty that could be found.

Mary Alden "Screen Mother" Coming in "A Woman's Woman"

News of paramount interest to motion picture theatre goers is contained in the announcement by the management of the Lyceum theatre that the widely discussed and much-heralded photoplay, "A Woman's Woman," with Mary Alden in the leading feminine role, and supported by an all-star cast, has been booked as the feature attraction for two days, beginning Monday.

"A Woman's Woman" has been the cause of much comment wherever shown for the reason that it is a picture that tells an actually truthful story of that sort of inner home life that is to be found daily everywhere, whether it be in Main Street, Gopher Prairie, or in the exclusive social circles of the bigger cities. And from all who have seen this remarkable picture come words of praise for production, story, star and cast, direction and photography. Patrons of the Lyceum, Manager Miller declares, have a genuine screen treat awaiting them.

On Approval.

A little Brookline lad thus explained triplets to a tiny sister: "Triplets always comes to poor families. It's when God sends them a whole line of samples to choose from, and they don't have money enough to pay the express man to take 'em back."—Boston Transcript

The First Power.

When the first electric power station was established in Bolivia the South American Indians thought that the white man was stealing the moon's light and power for his business. There were indignation meetings, which were suppressed only by the gradual understanding by the natives of the great benefit of electricity through this power station.

Lewis Stone and Ruth Clifford in "The Dangerous Age"

"The Dangerous Age" Great Screen Drama

Excellent drama is "The Dangerous Age," the John M. Stahl First National attraction which began a two day run at the Park this afternoon. It is a masterpiece of realistic portrayal of American family life and decidedly one of the "bigger and better" pictures toward which all producers are striving.

The audience which attended the opening performance gave vent to its approval by applauding vigorously when the last scene had faded away. It was one of the best pictures that this town had seen in a long time.

The picture contains so many features worthy of favorable comment that it is difficult to point out the best. Story, cast, direction, photography, settings—all are superb. Blended into "The Dangerous Age" they form an irresistible appeal.

We have often read of "all star" casts, but we've never seen one which came nearer earning that appellation than the one which enacts this picture. It consists of such remarkable actors and actresses as Lewis S. Stone, Cleo Madison, James Morrison, Helen Lynch, Edward Burns, Edith Roberts, Myrtle Stedman, Ruth Clifford, Richard Tucker, Lincoln Stedman and Dellorice.

Much credit is also due to Frances Irene Reels, the author, who has supplied a story eminently fitted for picturization and containing many episodes of gripping power.

KIDNEYS MUST HAVE PLENTY OF WATER

Also Take Salts Occasionally If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidney help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acids of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advt.

Smallest Birds.

The smallest bird is the minute hummingbird of South America. Some are little bigger than moths. Despite their small size, they are arrayed in gorgeous plumage. They dart about in sunshine like living flashes of light; so swift are their movements that it is difficult to obtain more than a brief glimpse of them. Sometimes these tiny birds can be studied when they hover above their favorite flowers.
